SHALL OUR VOTING SYSTEM BE CHANGED?

Every state in the Union has now adopted the secret ballot system and every voter can cast his ballot for whom he chooses without making the fact known how his ballot was cast.

With many of us we care but little who knows how we cast our ballot, as we are free and independent to select our choice of the candidates and vote for them, but there are in many parts of our State, men who are dependent upon their position for the support of their families, and were it not for the secret ballot they would be compelled to vote as their employer dictated or not vote at all or else lose their position.

The Democratic party adopted the secret ballot about 14 years ago in Kentucky thinking that it would deprive the illiterate and negro vote of their suffrage and thus prevent the Republican party from ever gaining control of the State. In this they were disappointed and now they ask the people to repeal their act by voting at the coming November election to return to the open ballot or open ballot system.

We can not afford to take a backward step. It is just what the Democratic party is seeking and should the secret ballot be discarded we would be the only State in the Union without the secret ballot system.

No matter if you don't care who knows how you vote, remember there are thousands of voters in Kentucky who must keep their vote a secret or lose their job and for their sake and for the future success of the grand old Republican party vote for the secret ballot system to stay. It gives every man an equal show at the ballot box and as the Republican party stands for fairness, a free ballot and a fair count, we can not afford to destroy the secret ballot system and thus place the ballot in the hands of capitalists who will not only cast their ballot against us but also those of the thousands of their employees.

Vote to retain the secret ballot system.

DOES ADVERTISING PAY?

We often hear persons say that advertising does not pay, that people will not read advertisements and that their business will not justify spending money to advertise.

In reply we would say that if the business does not justify advertising you had better quit the business and try something that will.

Advertise your business and make out of it a business that will justify advertising. That is the only way to make a flourishing business and by starting at the bottom you can build up a fine paying business by advertising and honest dealing.

Be sure that you have the bargains you offer in print before you call upon the trade and then when you get customers in your house treat them right and make regular customers out of them.

Do not spend time worrying about your ad not being read, as this is an age in which the public is looking for bargains and they search the newspapers for them and when they see a firm advertising bargains they go at once to secure them, if they fail to find them the merchant is at fault and not the paper, so we repeat be sure you have the bargains to offer your customers.

As evidence that the ads are read in the Advocate we refer you to a little "lost" notice which appeared in last week's issue, of a watch chain. The paper was mailed at 6 o'clock Thursday evening and before 8 o'clock Friday morning the chain was returned to this office. This is only one instance which shows how it pays to advertise.

At the Democratic convention held at Flemingsburg to nominate a candidate to represent Fleming county in the next General Assembly, the convention broke up in a row and Paul Hefflin was nominated by the regularly organized convention and John D. Wyatt was nominated by the bolting delegates.

The squabble will be given an airing before the State Central Committee of the party and as there has been so much bitterness injected into the campaign just closed the Republicans have a splendid opportunity to elect the representative from F1 mi g this year.

Fleming county is naturally very close and only a few years ago O. L. Linton a Republican represented the county.

Paul Hefflin is a Blackburn supporter while Wyatt is an supporter of Judge Paynter for U. S. Senator.

We hope to see the Republicans select the Representative and cast the vote of Fleming for a Republican U. S. Senator at the next general Assembly.

The law requires that a report of the financial condition of the county be published every year in a newspaper if there be one published in the county. We have called the attention of our County Attorney to this matter but as yet there has not been a report submitted to us for publication. We have been in the publishing business in Knox county continuously now for almost eighteen months and still no report. The fault is with our Fiscal Court. The public is entitled to know these facts and the law provides a penalty for failure of the Fiscal Court to comply with the law and we hope that honorable body will give this matter the proper attention without further delay.

In this connection we would say that the same law applies to cities and our City Council has neglected to comply with it, in having an "Annual report published." We hope the council will look into this matter and have the city Clerk prepare a report for publication showing the financial condition of our city.

Let us have these reports for publication without further delay. We do not want to scold, neither do we want to resort to the Circuit Court to compel these officials to do their duty.

CRUDE THOUGHTS as they Fall from the Editorial Pen. Pleasant Evening Reviews.

THE BABY.

Where did you come from, baby dear? Out of the every where into here. Where did you get your eyes so blue? Out of the sky and came through. Where did you get that little tear? I found it waiting when I got here. What makes your forehead so smooth and blank? A soft hand stroked it as I went by. What makes your cheek like a warm white rose? I saw something better than anyone knows. Where did you get those corns under your feet? Three angels gave me all in kisses. Where did you get this pretty war? God made, and it came out in heart. Where did you get those arms and limbs? Love made itself into looks and limbs. Feet, whence did you come, you darling thing? From the same box as the cherub's wings. How did they all come to be on you? God thought about me and so I grew. But how did you come to be my dear? God thought about you, and so I am here.

No heathen god or goddess has ever had more zealous devotees than fashion, or a more absurd and humiliating ritual, or more mortifying and cruel penance. Her laws, like those of the Medes and the Persians, must be implicitly obeyed, but unlike them change, as certainly as the moon. They are rarely founded in reason, usually violate common sense, sometimes common decency, and uniformly common comfort.

All the strength of the world and all of it's beauty, all true joy, everything that consoles, that leads hope or throws a ray of light along our dark paths, everything that makes us see across our poor lives a splendid gold and boundless future, comes to us from people of simplicity, those who have made another object of their desires than the passing satisfaction of selfishness and vanity, and have understood that the art of living is to know how to give one's life. Parents mold the characters of their children, or leave the molding to others—thus comforts or perfections are made for our own homes and the world.

Home is where the heart is. A place our feet may leave out but not our hearts. Home is where peace, joy comfort and happiness reign. Where fathers whistles merrily, where children are happy, joyous and gay; where the family gathers around the evening lamp, busy with books, the needle, the papers and playthings and busks in the sunshine of each other's love.

"Home is not merely four square walls, of wood and brick and spacious halls."

We would be glad to see all children grow to useful manhood and womanhood. They should be trained along the lines of industry. In short the home ought to be a sort of school for manual training, that through this useful occupation, the real heart of the child's mind might be readily perceived. Not all work, neither all play, but enough of both to make work and pleasure alike enjoyable and refreshing. Thus the child might be trained in useful ways, and obtain physical vigor now almost impossible by the unusual strain put on the child inclined to studious habits.

MODERN Living is a complex affair, greatly in contrast with the simple modes of life of the earlier Americans and of their immediate descendants. All the appliances which have been invented—notably during the past generation—to give heightened comfort to the home, and to make labor easier have added to this complexity of living, and most materially to its cost. How materially, one would hardly believe until he had studied the matter for himself and discovered beyond a question that today a man cannot support a wife and bring up one child, living in a comfortable and not at all lavish manner, upon what his ancestor would have considered sufficient to rear a large family. He cannot do it on what it cost his ancestor of only two generations ago. As men and women are educated and taught to think for themselves, they will no longer follow blindly the lead of the so-called "fashionable" bell-wethers, but will recognize the charm of independent modes of thought and life, and will permit themselves to live according to their own ideas and in their own ways. They will see the folly of attempting to imitate the methods of the millionaire on the income of the average business or professional man, but will live their own lives, happy in doing the things which they really care to do, instead of the things which they do just because somebody else does them.

A time woman who looks forward to a time when the lightening of household cares will give her time for mental development should begin the lightening up process at once. There is always a best way to do things. The benedict who gave his wife an easy lesson in saving time on the dish-washing by pitching the china and the fragments of the feast all in, to hot water together or may not have struck the best way. But if the dishes came out of the scrimmage unbroken who could dispute his assertion that it was better than spending an hour in scraping the plates. Figuratively speaking there is a great deal of time wasted in scraping the plates—in magnifying trifles—in getting ready to do something. The real business of the day is crowded through in some way, but there are so many other things that are given undue prominence that by the time the day is over the poor house-mother is a bundle of nerves and weariness. But it isn't always so. The years that have opened nearly every avenue in the business world to women have taught many of them to apply business methods in the management of a home. Good rules of action get the answer wherever they are applied. If concentration is a necessity in the office it is equally important in the home; for where it is properly applied it enables one to accomplish the best results with the least labor.

Hot Springs Ostrich Farm.

About four years ago an ostrich farm was started at Hot Springs. My room-mate and I went out one afternoon to see the birds and we were delighted with our trip. If you have the opportunity visit this place as it is real interesting, especially if you see them picking the birds, and riding and driving them.

At present there are 125 ostriches on the farm, which is an inclosure of seven acres. The ground is divided into lots, some of them small, others larger. An alley is left between some of the lots to keep the vicious males from fighting. Some of the more vicious ones are kept in the small inclosures with their mates, but most of them run in a flock in the large enclosures. They eat grass freely though some of the lots are stones and almost bare. They feed them green or dry hay and shipstiff mixed into chopped feed. They are fed in troughs about the same in height as for cattle. In the winter they are put into barns and are fed corn also. A number of them in a barn during cold weather keep warm as the birds are warm natured, though their thighs are always bare.

We can learn a good lesson from their custom of mating. They never marry (mate) but once and they always remain faithful to each other. If either male or female dies they never mate again, yet the ostrich lives to be 70 years old. They can strike a powerful blow forward with the foot but they never kick. The most vicious and largest bird is Bryan. He is sixteen years old, weighs 320 pounds and can trot a mile in two minutes and six seconds. I saw them harness and hitch Black Diamond to a four-wheel vehicle. The driver girded him with reins fastened to a halter around his head. He used a buggy whip and the bird trotted faster than I would care to ride behind him. Black Diamond is 21 years old, their oldest bird, weighs 310 pounds and is kept in a small enclosure with his mate. When they harness or pick the feathers they put a hood over their head as they cannot manage them without it. I saw one of the guides ride a bird like horse-back riding by holding to his wings without reins. He traveled faster than a person can run.

A bird lays about sixteen eggs per annum. They hatch their eggs in an incubator. One egg sells for $10. An ordinary egg weighs four or five pounds, and an ostrich a day old is about the size of a duck. The ostrich is full grown at about four years of age. After the birds are three years old the raw feathers of the male bird bring $75 and the female about $50 each year. These feathers are called the raw stock and are sent to New York each year and prepared for market.

I am glad to report to my Masonic brethren and friends and my church that I am wonderfully improved and am doing finely. I leave for home July 5 and will preach at Barboursville Sunday July 9. While I have not gained in pounds I have gained in strength and am rid of my rheumatism. Yours truly,
C. K. DICKEY.

Scalf.

There were funeral services at Salt Gum church last Sunday conducted by W. C. Warren and Thos. G. Hammons.

School began here Monday morning with Mrs. Brown as instructress.

Thomas G. Hammons paid $675.00 for a saw-mill and will be ready to cut lumber in a short time.

Thomas Scalf of Flat Lick is very low at this writing.

We wish every one knew how bad we need a telephone line. Let's get interested and have one.

Mrs. Nancy C. Hammons has purchased a graphophone which is quite amusing to the young folks.

Think of the telephone line.
